SHOCKING AFFAIR IN CLARKSON.—The telegraph to the Cleveland papers gives the particulars of a shocking affair which lately occurred in Clarkson, New York, and of which a meager notice was sent us by telegraph. The affair happened on the 4th inst. A Mrs. Marshall, who has been for some time deranged, being left alone with her eight children, deliberately attempted to murder them by pouring hot water into their ears. One is a boy seven years old, who, after the attempt was made on his life, most snperhnman efforts to escape, and was fortunately successful, ran from his mother, broke open the door of the room where he was confined, and made good his escape. The youngest, an infant about three months old, which could make no defense, when taken up by its father appeared to be dead, but it was discovered to exhibit some signs of tain parties here to deliver at St. Louis about a mil-Its recovery is hopeless. We did not hear the ages or sex of the other children, but understand there were three whose lives were attempted by the mother. After this shocking attempt to murder her offspring, Mrs. M. went to a chamber and hung herself. When found she was entirely dead.

The official correspondence between Lord Clarendon and Lord Napier, founded upon dispatches from the British Consul at St. Vincent, Cape de Verds, goes to show that the schooner N. Hand, which left this port in July, 1856, with provisions for the starving people of those Islands, made her benevolent mission the cover for engaging in the slave-trade. After landing her cargo at St. Vincent, her Captain stated that the vessel was bound

The particulars of this piratical traffic, under cover of philanthropy, are thus brought officially to the otice of our Government.

HUNTERS OF KENTUCKY .- This new military com pany, at a meeting held on Friday evening, organised by the election of the following officers: Captain, W. C. Price; First Lieutenant; W. R. Bostick; Second Lientenant, Thos. J. Smith; Third Lieutenant, Charles Davidson; Ensign, Joseph B. Watkins; Orderly Sergeant, John D. Clark; First Sergeant and Secretary, Austin J. Kendall; Second Sergeant, Solomon Green; Third Sergeant Samnel Moore; First Corporal, Aaron Hughes; Second Corporal, Geo. W. Conway; Third Corporal, A. Mc-Clelland: Fourth Corporal, Henry C. Price.

A committee will wait on the citizens to procur means for equiping the company.

ARREST FOR HORSE STEALING .- On Saturday evening Geo. H. Eams, who resides on the corner of Rowan and Twenty-Fourth streets, was arrested by Officers Vansant and Ragan, on a charge of stealing a horse from Col. Wm. P. Boone about a year ago. The horse was found in Eams's possession. He has kept him ont of the way until recently, supposing, no donbt, that the theft had been forgotten by the officers. Eams was arrested some three years ago on a charge of stealing a horse from Mr. Proal.

The Wheeling police, on Wednesday, arrested in the vicinity of that city, a noted counterfeiter named Joe Miller. He had in his possession at the time $120 in counterfeit notes, consisting of 20's on the Farmers' and Drovers' Bank of Waynesburg, Pa., and 5's on the Mercantile Bank of Connecticut. He offered the officer $300 to be let off. Miller was arrested for counterfeiting at Cincinnati some two months since, but admitted that he got clear by a regular system of false swearing.

LOVE-DEATH.

It was in the autumn-time of night; The skies' rich fruitage of stars was bright, "hing dripping with sweet moonlight.

There drifted an angel-poet's wings Sadly, softly o'er my heart's harp-strings Waking the love in Its gushing springs.

She nestled soft like a Heavenly dove,

I lived in the love of her dark hright eyes. I revelled amid their poesies, Drinking love's dream-laden mysteries.

The pale death met me in lordly strife, He battled fierce for my queenly wife, My love and the angel of my life.

And clasped her in its radiant fold, To gather her from the coming cold,

But the music-moan of midnight air Swept over the long, dark, mourful hair Of my dear lov'd one on her lowly bier.

She lies with her pale lips half apart, With never a smile, or sigh, or start. Death's white dove broods on her dreamless heart.

Life's roses fade, and death's lilies bloom. Oh! I weep with woe beside a tomh; I bow with a weight of weary gloom.

I try to think not under the snow, But sleeps my beautiful, pale and low, In mem'ry's Aiden of long ago.

Roses again ln my garden hloom But they're all o'ergrown with moss and gloom, With the moss that clings around a tomb

Come, guide me to my glorious rest, To find repose on her saintly breast.

RIVER AND STEAMBOAT MATTERS.

There were 6 fect 11 inches water in the canal ast evening. The present risc is from the Kenucky. Freights continue very scarce.

The steamers leaving to-day are the Moses Mc-Lellan for Cincinnati, the W. A. Eaves for Evansville and Henderson, the Hickman for Cairo and Memphis, the Yorktown for Nashville, and the W. W. Farmer for New Orleans.

It will be seen from a card that the fine steamer John Gault will commence making weekly trips to Cairo, where she will connect with the New Orleans packets Belfast and Ben Franklin. The Gualt will eave this port every Saturday.

Raised .- The sternwheeler Grand Turk, which vas sunk some time last winter at Cloverport, has een raised and taken to Paducali to be repaired. Fined .- The Captain of the steamer Rocket has een arrested at St. Lonis for violating a city ordinance by tying his boat at the landing with a large [Editorial Correspondence of the Louisville Journal.] NIAGARA FALLS, Aug. 6, 1857.

An unpleasant affair occurred at the International yesterday morning, in regard to which, as I am on the spot, it is but simple justice to state the facts in the columns of the Journal.

Mr. E. Crutchfield, a well-known and highly respectable citizen of Louisville, at present stopping with his family at the International, in crossing the ferry on the evening of Tuesday, the 4tn inst., found himself under the uccessity of requesting a negro, who turned out to be a waiter at the Hotel, to take a position in the boat less offensive to the ladies of the party. Mr. C. did this civilly, but receiving an insolent reply, he caught the fellow unceremoniously and threw him to the quarter indicated, where he remained quietly during the trip of the boat. On yesterday (the following) morning, however, as Mr. C. was seated with his family at the breakfast table, the negro, hacked by a bristling array of fellowservants, confronted him insultingly, and, before he could rise or utter more than a word, threw a turnbler violently against the back of his head, and made a lunge at him with a knife, inflicting a slight wound on his ear. Mr. C. was instantly pinioned by a stalwart gentleman present, and the waiter promptly arrested, tried before the Justice's court, convicted, sentenced, and dismissed from the House. The affair, though exceedingly mortifying and unpleasant to all concerned, especially to the amiable and excellent Proprietor of the International, was suppressed with a promptness that would have inspired the envy of Louis Napoleon or King Bomba; and Mr. Osborne, the public may rest assured, if, indeed, it requires any assurance, never sat more firmly on his throne or in the confidence and favor of his guests, assembled in large numbers from all quarters of the South, than at this moment. His conduct in the matter has elicited general and very warm approval from Southern gentlemen here, and ROBBERY .- The residence of Mr. S. B. Lewis, from none more emphatically than from Mr. Crutchsevere sentence against the offender, and when noted, he nobly asked for its mitigation at the hands of the Justice. It is quite unnecessary to say to those who know Mr. C. that his bearing throughout this anuoying affair has been eminently that of a highsouled and chivalric gentleman. It has called forth universal admiration. The following is Mr. C.'s

In relation to the assault upon me by a negro servant of the International on the 5th inst., I cheerfully acquit the efficient and gentlemanly Proprietor, Mr. Osborne, of all culpable neglect or remissness whatever. I am persuaded that he did everything in his power to bring the offender promtly to justice, and that under his firm and watchful discipline, and that under his firm and watchful discipline, such instances of insolent insubordination can rarely or never again occur. They certainly are as little or never again occur. They certainly are as little likely to occur at the International as at any Hotel with which I am acquainted in the North. I make this statement with sincere pleasure, not only out of respect for Mr. Osborne as a man, but from my high estimation of the manifold and unsurpassed attentions of his House.

E. CRUTCHFIELD.

After this, surely nothing can or need be said to discriminating public. P. R. S.

ATTEMPT AT MURDER.—Elisha F. Keene, Esq., delegate elect from Pittsylvania county, was shot and severely wounded on Sunday morning last, at his own house, by a free negro, named Ton Long. Under pretence that his child was sick, he awoke Mr. K. to administer to his relief just before daybreak. Mr. K. arose from his bed, and procuring medicine, started to the cabin in which L.'s wife and children (who were K.'s slaves) usually slept. After going a few yards from his door he was fired on by Long, hitting him on his left hand and breast. None of the shot penetrated his body dangerously. Long, had sent his wife and 5 children away before that. None of the negroes had been heard from on Monday morning. They are no doubt trying to reach that. None of the negroes had been heard from on Monday morning. They are no doubt trying to reach Ohio, where L. lived some time last year, or will probably try to escape through Northwestern Virginia, to Norfolk and take ship to New York.

Tobacco.—The heavy rains have damaged the to-bacco crop very materially. It is generally believed now that but little more than a half crop can be re-alized. Two-thirds of the crop was planted very early, and the rains and the unseasonable weather early, and the rains and the unseasonate weather have forced its growth to an early maturity. The greater part of the crop is now in blossom, and fit for topping, which will make the plant but one-half its usual and proper size, and of course light and chaffy. Great disappointment consequently exists among our planters, who, it is thought will hold on for higher prices another year. We advise those for higher prices another year. We advise those who have not sold their last year's crop, not to be anxious to sell.—Marlboro (Md.) Advocate.

Our New York exchanges inform us that Mrs. Cunningham was waited on Thursday morning and requested to submit to an examination of her person by physicians. By advice of counsel she refused, and it was abandoned. From an editorial in the Commercial on the general character of the developments thus far made, we extract the following:

It is now more than ever probable that more astonishing developments of immorality and wickedness will be made, such as will startle and alarm this community more even than the repeated nurders, assassinations and robberies that are of daily vented; others maintain that a more complete consummation of it ought to have been permitted.

The question thus raised is comparatively unimportant, in view of all the circumstances of the case. As to Dr. Uhl, his personal feelings, it is right to assume, were held in abeyance to the counsel of the District Attorney, who without Dr. Uhl's co-operation could do nothing.

Under all the circumstances of the case, it seems to have been Mr. Hall's duty. And if it was, then the success that has crowned his endeavors merits praise much more than it does censure. No risk of praise much more than it does censure. No risk of injury to any one was involved in the experiment.

[Correspondence of the Commercial Advertiser.]

[Correspondence of the Commercial Advertiser.]
The funeral of Beranger, the poet, has been in Paris the capital fact of the week.
Representation had been made to the Government that unless immense precautions were taken there would be an insurrection at this funeral, and on this account the news of his death was concealed until the next morning; and then his funeral was amnounced to take place that very day at 12 o'clock. At the same time the Government announced that the expenses of the funeral would be paid by the State; that the people would not be allowed to join in the procession, and that force enough would be on the ground to suppress any attempt at a disturbance.

the ground to suppress any attempt at a disturbance.

A notice of this character, os you may well imagine, was not calculated to conciliate the public feeling already excited on the subject.

The government made the most colossal preparations to meet the emergency. To begin with, every man was at his post. The prefect of police was in his bureau, with his aids around him. The Cabinet sat all day under the Minister of War, with all the electric wires of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs under his thumb. All the soldiers in the department of the Seine, not that day on active duty, were kept reposing on their arms, ready to march by railway at a moment's warning. Ten generals, from fifteen to tweniy thousand soldiers of all ranks, and two thousand policemen were detailed for active duty in the neighborhood of the fureral. About a hundred persons were invited to attend the fureral. These were members of the government and of the Institute, and comprised but few of the poet's personal or political friends. His real friends, the people, who had collected in an immense mass, variously estimated at from two to three hundred thousand, were keptaloof even from seeing the passage of the procession by the hypotens of the soldiers.

were kept aloof even from seeing the passage of the procession by the bayonets of the soldiers.

All the approaches to Beranger's residence were guarded by soldiers, and, when the finneral cortege started, it was conducted through a private street, and thus, by avoiding the Boulevard, the usual route of funeral processions going to the cemetery of Pere la Chaise, avoided at the same time the ovations of the immense multitude assembled. It was not till some time afterward that the fact was known, and then it was curious to see the quietness with which this insult to their understanding was received. One did not know whish to admire most, the impassability of the crowd under insult, or the contemptible littleness, or, as I afterward heard a Frenchman say, "the immense canvillerie" of the government. I came to the conclusion, however, that both understood the other, and that sympathy for the one or imprecations for the other were alike gratuitous. The Emperor understands his people and they in turn understand him.

The funeral procession was compressed of fifteen or and they in turn understand him.

The funeral procession was composed of fifteen or twenty monrning carriages furnished by the State stables, and snrrounded by a double file of soldiers in a sort of prolonged hollow square. In the narrow and obscure streets through which the cortege passed, it necessarily picked up a considerable crowd of the people at the end, but this addition was got rid of on crossing the canal by withdrawing the bridge, which swings on hinges to allow boats to pass. Arrived at the cemetery, the body of Beranger was placed in the tomb of his intimate personal and political friend Manuel, who died before him. It is here, however, only temporarily, and the government, it is said, will build a magnificent monument to his memory.

Beranger had but two relatives in Paris at the time of his death, both nephews; one a journeyman and they in turn understand him.

time of his death, both nephews; one a journeyman compositor, and the other an assistant leader of a military band. M. Thiers and several other prominent members of the Institute were present, but M. Lamartine and the principal leaders of the republican party refused to attend the funeral under the terms imposed by the government.

Another funeral of a different character took place since that of Beranger, at the Hotel des Invalides. This was the funeral of Jerome Napoleon Values. In was the interact of Jerome Aporeon Charles Bonaparte, Prince of Montfort, son of Prince Jerome Bonaparte, ex-King of Westphalia, by the Princess Catharine of Wurtemberg, the first child bona after the divorce from Miss Patterson of Baltimore and the marriage with the Wurtemberg Princess. Lorsey Navales Chales were home at Tripate cess. Jerome Napoleon Charles was born at Trieste in 1814; he was colonel in the 8th regiment of the line in the service of the King of Wurtemberg, his grandfather, and died in 1847; he was the brother of the Prince Napoleon and the Princess Mathilde. The French Gevernment reclaimed his remains from the King of Wurtemberg, and from the place chosen for his interment, it would seem that the Hotel des Invalides has been finally decided upon by Louis Napoleon as the future resting place of the Nonaparte dynasty.

The long protracted Charles Morey negotiation bas been decided, and the French Government has made the liberal allowance to the widow of 76,000 francs—about $15,000. This is a handsome indemnate the liberality of the French nity, and does honor to the liberality of the French Government. It was the snm fixed between the widow and the American Minister and was accepted without a murmur, after other prelimitary difficul-ties had been got rid of. Mr. Mason has been in-defatigable in the prosecution of this claim, and is entitled to the highest praise for the manner in which it has been conducted.

FLOATING WITH THE TIDE .- On Sunday afternoon last a convict in the stave or hoop shop at Sing Sing, named King, who had less than a year to stay, passed out of the prison bonds in a rather ingenions manner. He procured a plank eight or ten feet long, and, throwing it into the water, placed himself astride, when one or two of his fellows partially covered him with the shavings they had just remov ed from the shop. Thus mounted he went off with the tide, and floated past the village wharves, where he attracted the attention of several persons who thought they recognised a head "bobhing 'round,' but did not suspect the truth. The raft, with its solitary passenger, has not since been heard from.

THE GENIUS OF HAMILTON. - The Washington National Intelligencer, in some comments respecting the method of transacting business at the Treasury Department, remarks: "It is another proof added to many others of the superior genius of Hamilton, that all the present system, forms, ehecks, and balances of the Treasury Department originated with him, without his having a precedent or model to work from; and that, after an experiment of seventy years, no improvement has been made, though no doubt many have been suggested or attempted, upon hir original plan.'

PEACHES .- The Lyons (N. Y.) Republican says that the prospect for an abundant supply of peaches in Wayne county was never better. The trees are loaded with fruit. The crop along the Hudson promises to be all the preserve kettles can wish. In the counties of Duchess, Ulster, Columbia, and Green the peach never looked better. Out West the supply will also be ahundant. In the vicinity of Rochester they expect to sell peaches for 50 cents a bushel in October. The plumb and apple crops also promise finely.

HOOPS AND WHALEBONE.-There were 2,000. 000 lbs. of whalebone in the United States when the hoop fashion came in vogue, and this was selling at about 60 cents per pound. Since January 1st, 1857, the imports of this article reach 1,800,000 pounds, yet there is now little or no stock in the market. What remained in the seahoard cities has been nearly all bought up at $1 20 per pound.

Letter from Constantinople, dated June 30th,

The circumcision of the Sultan's three younger sons commences to-day, and great preparations have been made in the vicinity of Pera to celebrate the occasion with much pomp. According to Oriental usage, a large number of youths will undergo the same operation with the princes, and each will receive a suit of clothes and a small donation in money from the Saltan. Thousands of tents have been pitched in the open country, just beyond Pera, and wooden platforms and topes have been prepared for jugglars and rope-dancers for the amusement of the public. On the same occasion there were to have been rejoicings made for the marriage of the Sultania three describes. but in consequence of the tan's three danghters, but, in consequence of the death of a younger daughter of the Sultan, these will be deferred until next fall or spring. The expenses will be considerable, and it is a well known fact that the imperial treasury is quite empty. This, however, has to be kept from the Sultan by his present excellent grand vizier Redshid Pasha; and quite recently the head chamberlain of the palace was dismissed for having ventured to inform the Sultan that there was no money in his coffers. Proposals are being made for the erection of a new Bank of Turkey, and the capital is now being subbrokers of the place. The question of the railroad seems to be quietly sinmbering, and it is supposed that nothing of the kind will be decided upon at the RECOVERY OF PART OF THE MONEY STOLEN FROM THE AMERICAN EXPRESS, AT QUINCEY, ILL.-The Quincey (Ill.) Whig, in giving an account of the late express robbery there, says:

Two thonsand dollars of the money stolen has been recovered. It was found by a girl who had chased some ducks into a woodpile, and, reaching in after them, found two packages of the money. Suspicion resting on some party, he was arrested.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Patriot.] THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH. U. S. S. F. Susquehannan, Liverpool, July 24, 1857.

DEAR FRIEND: We arrived here on Sunday from Cowes, and, passing up the Mersey, we anchored after our usual manner of bungling near the Niagara, and now, to give you the very latest news conra, and now, to give you the very latest news con-cerning the Atlantic Telegraph, I have taken some pains to collect these items, and you may rest assured they are reliable information divested of all

Every thing for this grand international enterprise is rapidly approaching completion, and, before this reaches you, we will be in Cork, making the experireaches you, we will be in Cork, making the experiments deemed necessary to insure success. If you remember, the Niagara was at first objected to as unfit to take on board the cable, but Capt. Hudson, with his characteristic firmness and judgment, demanded a survey by competent persons; the survey was held and the ship pronounced fit; the grand objection was want of space to put the cable on board in one coil. Now see the consequences: the Niagara, by storing the cable in five coils instead of one, has the great weight equally distributed, and no has the great weight equally distributed, and no fears are entertained of straining the ship; whereas, on the other hand, they already regret not adopting a similar plan on beard the Agamemnon, as it has been reported that she has already began to show signs of yielding under the immense weight. Although they commenced receiving the cable on board the Agameinnon one week in advance, yet Yankee go-aheadativeness won the palm, and the Niagara is ahead by six days.

It was also reported that there was a difficulty in transmiting the electric current through the half-lengths, and fears were entertained that when the halves were joined, no battery could be constructed of sufficient power to send the electricity through the whole length, but I have been informed by Professor Morse that no such difficulty had been met or was anticipated.

The scene presented at the manufactory was one of extreme interest. You first entered the room where the electric wires, seven in number, are re-ceived from the workers of the Gutta Percha Comceived from the workers of the Gutta Percha Company, coated with the protecting and insulating gutta percha. Here the casing, with the aid of the sewing machine, receives a covering of tarred yarn, after which it is accumulated on a large drum.
Thence it is conveyed by the action of machinery to a number of lobbins which are fixed to a rotary machine, called the closing machine, and being drawn pward it receives a final casing of iron wires, which, meeting in a narrow aperture, are twisted around it at the meeting point. There are five of these closing machines constantly at work, day and night, and at the meeting point. There are five of these closing machines constantly at work, day and night, and the whole complete about twenty miles per day. After this process the cable is passed through a tartank, the heat of which is regulated hy a thermometer, and being afterward cleaned by means of a brush, it is then formed into large coils preparatory to being shipped. The shore portions of the cable are larger in diameter and made stronger to guard against all accidents, but the Admiralty have cooperated with the company, and buoys are to be placed marking the line of the cable so that ships may not anchor near it.

One of the most interesting features, which I have not seen before mentioned, is the joining of the wire which takes place about every thousand yards. Such is the effect of the process, that in case the cable is broken by a current or otherwise, one wire, would remain uninjnred, and the communication would not be interrupted. The metal would spring

Nothing can be more beautiful than the welding process at this joining; the bevelled parts of the wire having been united, the strips of gutta percha an wrapped over and welded with the sid of a flame of rized naptha; these are ultimately covered with a thick coating of the same material; and, in order to strengthen the cohesion between the old and new gutta percha at the point of juncture, a portion of the latter is afterwards cut off, prior to its being welded with the former, which is warmed, as before indicated, for that purpose. After witnessing the operation, it is impossible to doubt that the cementa-tion is perfect.

This is the process that will be adopted when the wire is joined in the centre of the Atlantic, and being so simple here, no fears may be entertained of its failing on ship board. The machine for ohviating any strain that might occur upon the cable was invented by a very ingenious German mechanic.

There is always attached to the cable a testing apparatus, and the tinkling of tiny bells gives warning of anything requiring attention. Prof. Morse and Dr. Whitehouse, the electrician, accompanied us from Cowes, and both seemed confident of suc-

The precise course to be pursued as regards the paying out of the cable by the two vessels is not yet determined. Much, of course, must depend upon wind and weather, and provision will doubtless be made for all the contingencies which a wise foresight and the concurrence of the most experienced heads can anticipate.

The Niagara has just finished taking on hoard her share, and will sale on Monday for Cork. The Agamemnon, I hear, is almost ready; so by the first of August we will be ready to sail from Cork harbor upon this, the greatest expedition of the age. Now, as regards the manner of paying out, a system of grooved wheels are arranged, so that the cable passing over and under these, the amount of friction necessary to its proper paying out is nicely regulated. As in some parts of the ocean the depth at which the rope is to he laid will be rather more than two miles and a half, there would be in phocess of paying out, probably twice that extent of cable held paying out, probably twice that extent of cable held in suspension, and as this weighs in water forrteen hundred weight to the mile, the necessity of adoptto quickly will be evident, and the machinery for providing against this contingency is of the most powerful description. Arrangements have also been made in the event of any accident, and the cable has to be cut, to bouy it with large bouys, and a small steam engine and machinery are provided to wind it in ergin in again.

The batteries are of most extraodinary power; the The batteries are of most extraordinary power, the boxes and the acid together weigh five tons. That a hattery of great power is necessary is quite evident. The current has to pass through all that uncoiled on board the ships; then leaping overboard, skip over the mountains and through the valleys of old ocean's bed. The cable is 5-8ths of an inch in diameter.

Now I think I have given you all the particulars that would prove interesting to you at this time relating to the wire.

THE SHENCE OF AN ARCTIC NIGHT.—The following eloquent description of the silence of an Arctic night occurs in Dr. Hays's lecture on the Arctic Regions. We have, at least, upon one occasion, when eight or nine miles underground in the Mammoth Cave, seemed to feel the darkness, but we never imagined that other negative attribute of nature—silence—could be so intense as to be heard. Yet the doctor's description makes this strange paradra available.

ody a reality. He says:

"The moonlight's of this period (winter) are the most grand and impressive of anything I have ever witnessed. The clearness of the air, the white surface of the snow and ice give an effect monotonous and cheerless, but truly grand. But there is a new element, which makes this midwinter moonlight seem almost terrible in its impressiveness—it is silence.

"I have often, to escape from the trying monotony of ship-board life, gone off six or eight miles into the interior in search of novelty and in order that I might be alone. There, seated upon a rock or snowthe interior in search of novelty and in order that I might be alone. There, seated upon a rock or snowbank, I look around me, and see a great, uneven country; rocky hills and glaciers covered with snow; myriads of crystal gems sparkling in the light of the pale moon, which shoots its rays down through the crisp air, making it almost as light as day. I look seaward, and see a long plain of ice, melting into the horizon, dotted all over with huge, towering bergs, nothing more. All nature is in the repose of death. I am too far from the shore to hear the crunching of the tables as they rise and fall lazily with the tide, or the roar like distant thunder as some huge crack opens through the heavy floes. There is no animal to cross my path, no tree among whose stiff branches the wind can sigh and moan. There is no song of bird to enliver the scene—no wild beast to how!. I stand there alone, the only representative of God's living world—the only heing that has life or can move. Every sound that I hear every motion that I see, is made by myself; I hear nothing but the pulsations of my own heart, my own footsteps, or now and then, possibly, in the distance, the deep rumbling of a falling snow-bank.

"The sensation of utter loneliness and isolation creens over me. My heart heats as it mushes the ons accident occurred on the Wilmington and Weldon railroad yesterday afternoon, by which several persons were more or less injured—one or two, it is thought, mortally.

About 4 o'clock in the afternoon, as the down train from Weldon got within a short distance of the trestle work over Yellow Marsh, eight miles this side of Goldsboro', the axel of the driving wheel of the locomotive broke. The engineer, finding it impossible to stop the cars before reaching the trestle work, endeavored to rush the train over and reach the endeavored to rush the train over and reach the embankment on the other side. The trestle work at this point is short, but some twenty or twenty five feet in height. The train passed over, but just as it did so the cars were thrown off the track and down the embankment, the locomotive in its disabled state tearing up a portion of the sheepers and the bled state tearing up a portion of the sleepers and the rail. The engine and the tender remained upou the track. The baggage car rolled down the gully. The smoking car rolled over several times some distance from the road; the passenger cars, containing some twenty-five or thirty passengers, were thrown off, the last one rolling over several times. These cars were all smashed up.

A number of persons were injured by this dread-

The train, at the time the axle broke, was going at a moderate speed, otherwise it is probable that many lives would have been lost. As it is, however, it is the most painful and terrible accident that has ever happened on the road.—Witnington (N. C.) Herald, Aug. 8.

Was it Instinct?—The Chicago Tribune is responsible for saying a gentleman of that city had occasion, a few days ago, to drive his horse, attached to a light covered buggy, across the track of the Chicago and Milwaukee railroad, in the suhurds of Chicago and Milwaukee railroad, in the suburds of the town. As he approached the track, he saw a passenger train coming, and thereupon drew rein and waited for it to pass. After it whisk'd by he chirruped to Dick to go on, but Dick refused to hudge an inch. The whip was applied to his hack, and he seized the bit in his teeth and with one or two transfers leave grossed the track and instantly came mendous leaps crossed the track and instantly came down to his usual gait. As the buggy went over the rrils, a freight train, which the horse had seen but the driver had not, thundered past, just grazing the hind heels as it went! Dick had kept a better look out than his master, saw the danger and escaped by means we have stated. Dues a borse ever reson? means we have stated. Does a horse ever reason?

Who Dropped That?—Lately a gentleman of Chicago was accompanying two ladies to the panorama of the Arctic Expedition, when, in crossing Market street, he stepped on a hogshead hoop which flew at (as hoops will do) and struck him across his not very handsome nose. "Good heavens, ladies!" he exolaimed, which of you dropped that?"

Stoves made of slate and beantifully enameled are now made in England for parlor use. They are lined with fire brick.

A MASONIC MOVEMENT-Purchase of Mt. Vernon. We find the following announcement in the Richond Dispatch:

We understand that one or more of the Masonic Lodges of this city have originated a plan for the purchase of Mount Vernon, which, if taken hold of purchase of Monnt Vernon, which, if taken hold of in earnest by the "brothers of the mystic tye" throughout the Union, cannot fail of success. The plan proposed is to get the subordinate lodges to contribute $1 for each member. The price asked for the Meunt Vernon estate is $200,000, and the Masonic statistics show the order numbers three hundred thousand; so that if all the lodges in the Union accede to the proposition—and the prohability is that they will—the purchase of Mount Vernon may he looked upon as a fixed fact. But the suggestion, as given out, does not stop here.

When the land which contains the last mortal remains of the immortal Washington is possessed by the Masons, they propose to present it to the State of Virginia, only reserving to their order the right to meet around the tomb of their deceased brother once every year, to celebrate his imperishable deeds meet around the form of their deceased orones overly year, to celebrate his imperishable deeds and to keep alive his great name. We have strong faith in this patriotic plan for the purchase of Mount Vernon, knowing, as we do, that the order from which it emanates are ever ready for good deeds, and never look hack when they put their hands to the plough. Let every true Mason feel that the tomb of Washington can call he preserved from decay hy Washington can only be preserved from decay by his efforts, and but a few short months will roll by ere it will be the property of that State which gave him birth, and to whose keeping alone his ashes should be entrusted.

MEN OF CENTRAL ASIA.—Such is the extreme jealousy and fanaticism of the Afghanistan tribes, that it is almost impossible for Europeans to hold any intercouse with them or the people beyond, who are off-shoots from the same original stock, although bearing different names and influenced by a higher degree of holy selfishness and pride. Of all the people, however, known to travelers who have had people, however, known to travelers who have had the boldness to brave unheard of dangers for the sake of penetrating into the interior, the Beloches are the most extraordinary. A Beloche is absolute are the most extraordinary. A Beloche is absolute in his family. They are as savage as wild heasts, and, being nomads, range with unrestrained freedom over the deserts. Complete liberty is an imperious necessity of their nature; and they are as prond of horrible crimes as good men are of their benevolent acts. The law of savage revenge is the only one strictly observed. When blood has been shed, eternally the savage revenue in the only one strictly observed. strictly observed. When blood has been shed, eternal hatred, which outlives generations in families in which the deed occurred, is the result. A reconciliation, cemented by marriage, or the kind offices of a Peer—which means a holy man—does not change the never dying purpose of having revenge. To gratify this one all absorbing sentiment, the Beloche will track his victim with a quiet perseverance perfectly amazing, and ultimately, either openly or by a snare, glut his savage soul by cutting the throat of the one he has been seeking, with a refined harbarity incredibly cruel.

When two Beloches of adverse tribes, inspired by When two Beloches of adverse tribes, inspired by family hatred, who never even saw each other, undertake to seek redress in their way, they have a marvelous instinct in finding the foe. They scent each other like pointers, but, in coming in sight for the first time, they regard each other with an apparent quiet demeanor and in silence for a moment, but this calm is a death ways the second of but this calm is a death-warrant for one of the two. They have no pity. If unarmed, they will tear each other like tigers, or strangle each other without making the least cry. This is a peculiarity of the people of Seistan, a region traversed by Alexander the Great in his all-conquering progress towards India.

These horrible members of the human family are plendidly developed, handsome, nervous, impulve, with an olive complexion, and an expression sive, with an olive complexion, and an expression of ferocity. They pretend to be Mussulmans, hut their religious notions are a mixture of Islamism, Christianity, and Idolatry. A certain something, called Peer Kisri, is next in anthority to God. When they swear by him, then, and only then, can they he trusted. Mohammed is considered a prophet

In their marches, they move with a rapidity quite unknown to other countries, as they will outwalk a horse, and instances are cited where a person has thus tired out three horses in succession. These dreadful men eat but little. They believe implicitly in auguries, so that the cry of a wild animal, the sight of a serpent, a bird on the wing, a flight of birds, or a troop of wild asses which separate two divisions is sufficient to stop them short in the midst of a journey. They will never leave a place where they happen to he, hefore the sun, under which they were warned by convirce her. der which they were warned by auguries, has set and risen again. This delay is to allow Fate time to alter her intentions. When an opportunity for pillage arrives, their activity is intense. On a dromedary they sit back to back, to have a complete panoramic view of every movement of living things on earth, or the heavens above. things on earth, or the heavens above. Prisoners that they cannot conveniently carry away, are killed, without apology, on the spot. For the chance of stealing a pocket handkerehief they will go many miles, fight in pools of blood, and endure hardships that no others could bear. So inveterate is the thieving propensity that two friends, two brothers, or even father and son, take care not to sleep near each other so distrustful are they well knowing hlood through the sensitive organization of the ear; I am oppressed as with discordant sounds. Silence has ceased to be negative; it has become sternly positive. I hear, see, and feel it. Its presence is unendurable. I spring to my feet—I plant them heavily in the snow, to drown its presence, and I rush back to the vessel and glad even to find refuge in its dull, dull life of horrid inactivity."

Terebele Raleroad Accident.—A very seri-

Europeans-for they have no knowledge of America—are considered as cast-aways, deriving their origin from genii, who, being in league with the devil, has taught them how to make gold, endowed them with the power of the evil eye, and the faculty of finding hidden treasures. Of this latter grace, they are more and more confirmed, because every traveler who has visited their country is invariably groping among old ruins, turning over fallen columns, and making notes in a book.

Working and Thinking.—It is a no less fatal error to despise labor, when regulated by intellect, than to value it for its own sake. We are always, in these days, trying to separate the two; we want one man to be always thinking, and another to be always working, and we call one a gentleman and the other an operative; whereas the workman ought always to be thinking, and the thinker often to be working; and both should be gentlemen in the best sense. As it is, we make both ungentle, the one envying, the other despising his brother; and the mass of society is made up of nuorbid thinkers and miserable workers. Now it is only by labor that thought can be made healthy, and only by thought that labor can be made happy, and the two cannot be separated with impunity. All professions should be liberal, and there should be less pride felt in peculiarity of employment, and more in excellence of achievement.—Ruskin.

LIGHTNING.—The peculiarities of that terrible but mysterious agent, lightning, are made the subject of an interesting paper in a recent number of the British Quarterly Review. Two clouds are not necessary for the production of lightning, which is frequently discharged from a solitary clump of vapor, when a connection can be established with the earth. A French academician, named Marcolle, describes a case where a mere cloudlet, about a foot and a half in diameter, killed a poor woman by dropping a thunderbolt upon her head. It has been shown by Farraday that the electric fluid continued in a single flash might he supppled by the decomposition of one grain of water alone.

An Old Family.—John Bannister, the comedian, was presented to an old lady prond of ancient and noble blood. The lady asked a wit of the day, who was present, "who are the Bannisters? Are they of a good family?" "Yes," said the wit, "very good, indeed; they are closely connected with the States." "Oh," said the lady, "a very ancient family of Aryshire—dates back to 1450; I am delighted to see your friends."

HEADACHE AND DEBILITY .- Mr. Silas J. L.

comb, of Birmingham, says:
"I have found in Borhave's Holland Bitters a remedy for Headache and Dehility. My wife has also used it with the greatest benefit."

Mr. A. S. Nicholson, of Pittshurg, also remarks that he has experienced much relief from its use for Headache.

that he has experienced much relief from its use for Headache.

Take a half tea-spoonful three times a day, an hour before meals. Eat moderately, and then of wholesome food, and you will find this is really a remedy for Sick and Nervous Headache, Weakness of any kind, Costiveness, and Piles. Being perfectly simple in composition, it may be taken without fear by the invalid. Possessing a fine aromatic flavor, it is very grateful to the debilitated stomach.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6. PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.

The case of Anna Meister, Caroline Horner, and Caroline Mueller, charged with a conspiracy to obtain money and valuables from various persons, was resumed yesterday morning. In addition to what we have already published, the evidence showed that Anna Meister preached that the world was about to be destroyed, and that only 40,000 by her instrumentality could be saved, and that she was the sister of the Saviour.

Several witnesses testified that she gave a feast. The tables were filled with wines and all the fruits in season; that Anna was dressed in white with stars upon her bosom, and a crown upon her head. That she there represented to her disciples that so she must appear before God.

A Novel Wager.—Mr. Martin Perkins, of Dover, N. H., made a wager of $50, on the 18th ult., that he could haul a wagon weighing 230 pounds, with a man in it weighing 160 pounds, two miles inside of 25 minutes. The ground to be gone over being of 25 minutes. The ground to be gone over being a hard road to travel, two to one was freely offered that he would not do the distance inside of the time, with but few takers. He went to his work at six o'clock P. M., and accomplished the feat in 22 min-

EVENING BULLETIN

We had the satisfaction a few days ago, in company with one of the proprietors, to examine in detail the immense establishment just put in operation at the corner of Main and Clay streets by our enterprising fellow-citizens, Messrs. Wallace, Lithgow, & Co. There is nothing so well calculated to give to the citizen who desires to see the advancement of our manufacturing interests an earnest of our capabilities in this respect as a visit to such an establishment as the Fagle Foundery. He has before him a section of the domain of labor, and he is enabled to calculate the rich returns in robust health and in peaceful plenty which are ever flowing in upon the sons of toil. In addition to this he has but to obtain data of the progress of a particular undertaking in order to be convinced that nothing is wanting amongst us but energy and perseverance to insure success in almost any department of manufacturing enterprise. It is, comparatively, but a few years since the proprietors of this mammoth concern were induced to make an effort, in a very inefficient manner, to secure to Louisville a larger proportion of the immense trade in stoves, hollow-ware, and other small castings which the superior enterprise of Cincinnati and other cities was drawing from our own borders. Perseverance won them success, and the result is before us in an establishment which as to capacity and completeness of arrangement is second to none in the Union.

It is generally admitted that the amount of capi tal used in mercantile pursuits in Louisville, though possibly not greater than warrants a safe and sufficient return to the merchant, is nevertheless in undue proportion to that which is invested in manufactures. We should be glad to see a change in that respect, and we cannot doubt that such a change would redound greatly to the interests both of the city at large and those individuals through whose means it might be effected. It has been abundant ly proven that our city presents unusual facilities for the disposal of every description of manufactured goods needed by the South and West. The capital to establish mannfactures and to successfully carry them on is here in abundance, and we lack but the enterprise to secure for our city an enviable manu-

The Eagle Foundery buildings were erected under the immediate supervision of the archetect, Silas J. Evans, Esq., and are built in the most substantial manner. The front building is four stories in height, fronting 120 feet on Main street, by 32 feet on Clay street, and its highest point is surmounted by an elegantly carved gilt eagle. About one-fourth of the first floor is occupied by the engine and the blast cylinders, and the remainder, with the entire second story, as finishing rooms. The third and fourth stories, with the capacious cellar extending under the entire building, are used for storing finished work. The hoisting apparatus is exceedingly convenient, and is worked by steam power.

The moulding room, which is immediately back of the main building, is the feature of the establishment. It is one hundred and seventy-four feet in length by 90 in width, and 25 feet high. The roofing timbers are in one span, are self supporting, and leave an unobstructed floor of 15,360 square feet The room is lighted and ventilated by windows on either side and a sky-light 140 feet long, 16 feet wide, and 45 feet from the floor, the sliding sashes of which are opened and closed by means of pullies reaching to the ground. Attached to the moulding room is that which encloses the cupola, by which term the unitiated will understand the furnace for fasing pig metal. This cupola has capacity for melting 25 tons of metal per day. Opening inte-this are the cleaning rooms, 80 by 16 feet. Here the castings are cleaned and weighed, previous to their removal to the finishing rooms. These rooms also contain the casting-cleaners, the blacking mills, grindstones, pumps, &c., all operated by the engine. Outside of the main building is the boiler-shed, 22 hy 44 feet, with stack ten feet in diameter at the hase and 70 feet high. Separated from this by a large yard 100 by 204 feet, and used for the storage of pig metal, coal, coke, oven-flasks, &c., is the building used for marbleizing and enamelling grates, mantels, &c., as also the shop for making patterns and the blacksmith shop. The whole lot, which is enclosed by a substantial fence 14 feet high, covers a space equal to 51,000 square feet. The bnildings are all covered with tin or iron, and are as near fire-proof as it was possible to make them. The engine was furnished by Messrs. Roach & Long, and is a beautiful piece of machinery. The cost of the entire establishment, with the necessary fixtures, was something over $60,000.

Mr. Joseph Hackett, an experienced founderyman, and a most urbane gentleman, has control of the internal arrangements of the foundery. Under his attentive management, and through the untiring energy of its proprietors, we look for a bright future for the Eagle Foundery.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.—The steamer Admiral, at Boston, with New Brunswick papers, brings intelligence of a disastrons gale, attended with great loss of life, which occurred on the north shore of the province, on the 22d ult. The Miramichi Gleaner

This morning we learn from a person just arrived from Tracadie, that 29 dead bodies had been picked up on the beach. Another report says that 60 boats are supposed to be lost, and that 51 dead bodies have been recovered. Two hundred boats were out fishheen recovered. Two hundred boats were out fishing, and many disasters, it is feared have occurred.

The master of a coaster arrived this morning from Shediac, and says he put into Egmont Bay, P. E. Island, during the storm, and he counted 130 Americans. can fishing crafts that had run in for shelter. He states that there is great destruction among the fishing boats, some having gone ashore.

We learn that the young Durham bull Macbeth, imported by the Mason County Importing Co., was so badly gored a few days since by another animal, that he can not possibly live. The company intended sending Macbeth and some one or two heifers to the fair in Lonisville, in September. Macbeth was a splendid animal and was valued at about $2,500 — Manyalla Fands. 500 .- Maysville Logle.

Tebacco—We remarked at the close of our last report that the market had become somewhat steadier and firmer under the relief afforded by the considerable sales of the two weeks, and the finner feeling, coupled with advanced rates of freight, has made the market less easy to operate in and caused a failing off in the amount of business, the week's sales, so far as we have been able to ascertain, being about 1000 hhds, in several lots, and all on private terms except 1 hild at 12, 1 at 13½, 1 at 14, 9 at 13, 13½ and 13, and 44 hhds, of which 31 at 11 and 13 at 10 cents $\frac{1}{2}$ fb. The market closes decidedly firmer for the lower grades and for frosted, which have been greatly depressed for some time past, and purchases can hardly be made at the moment at inside figures. Bagging and Rope—Kentucky bagging continues to sell very slowly at about 14(a):b½c 2 yard, according to brauds, the cutside rate for the best powerhoom. Rope may be quoted at a 1960½c for good handspun, and 10(3):b½ and 10½c 2 ib for machine. For India bagging the market is firm with an upward inclination in prices, and sales of 600 to 800 bales, nearly all at 14½(a):1½c 2 yard.

Coffee—The unusual degree of quiet which we represented as prevaling in the market last week, has continued to characterize it during the one now closing, and the sales for that period have amounted to barely 600 bags at the same wide range of prices before noticed, 10(a):1½c 2 ib for ordinary to the best quality. One further care of 8000 bags has been received, making the sum of the direct imports since lat September 228,:250 bags asgainst 35,000 at the corresponding period last season.

Money—We have no very decided change to notice in the character of the money market since our review of last Saturday morning. Strictly first class paper can be negotiated with rather more facility than previously, but in other respects there is but little alteration, the rates remaining about the same for all grades as were current last week, and the demand for money, though on a less extensive scale than it was, continues still to be considerably greater ban can be supplied by the available means of the banks, or by capitalists outdoors. We quote as follows—Exchange—We quote sterling clear bills $%(a)% and 10 % cent. premium. France 5 12½(a) 15½ and 10 % cent. premium. France 5 12½(a) 15½ and 10 % cent. premium.
